

ABSTRACT

A computer controller is described for disabling fuel injection into cylinder groups of an engine. The 5 system controls engine output a reduced engine torques without reducing engine air amounts below an engine misfire amount by reducing the number of cylinders carrying out combustion. Engine airflow is controlled to maintain accurate torque at requested levels throughout 10 engine operating ranges.